CLIFFORD E. LEE PLAYWRITING AWARD

The winner of the third annual Clifford E. Lee national playwriting award is Lezley Havard of Toronto for the play Jill. The play was selected from a total of fifty-two submitted, and the competition was conducted under the auspices of the Department of Drama of the University of Alberta. Judges for the third annual competition were John Neville, Artistic Director of the Citadel Theatre; William Davis, Artistic Director, Festival Lennoxville, Lennoxville, Quebec; and David Helwig, Literary Manager, CBC TV Drama, Toronto.

The Clifford E. Lee Award for playwriting has created national interest. Out of six finalists, two playwrights were from Alberta. In addition to the $2,000 award plus travel and living expenses during the short-term playwright-in-residence program, Lezley Havard will have Jill staged in February 1977 at the new Citadel Theatre.

LIGHTING REDUCTION PAYING OFF

The following report has been received from G.A. Bulat, Acting Director of Physical Plant.

As reported in the 8 April issue of Folio, the Department of Physical Plant was implementing a reduction program on campus, starting with the General Services Building. The program for this building, which resulted in the removal of 2,450 fluorescent tubes representing approximately 25 percent of the installed building lighting, has been completed. Estimated annual savings in electrical energy demand, consumption, and maintenance is $12,000 per year at current rates.

Further savings are possible if everyone turns lights off in unoccupied offices, classrooms, and laboratories. The next building on the schedule is Home Economics.

TWO PROFESSORS ELECTED TO FELLOWSHIP IN THE ROYAL SOCIETY

Ernest Kanasewich, Professor of Physics, has been elected to Fellowship in the Royal Society for his work in earth science. Dr. Kanasewich received a BSc and MSc from this University and a PhD from the University of British Columbia. He has gained an international reputation for his work in geochronology, seismology, and time sequence analysis. In 1973 he published a book on time sequence analysis which has become a standard text for researchers and graduate students in many countries. Dr. Kanasewich has made a number of contributions in lead isotope geochronology, deep crustal reflection seismology, time sequence analysis, and the development of digital filters for seismological data.

Mary Spencer, Professor of Plant Science, has been elected to Fellowship in the Royal Society of Canada for excellence in the study of the metabolism of ethylene. Dr. Spencer received a BA in chemistry from the University of Saskatchewan, an MSc from Bryn Mawr College, Pennsylvania, and a PhD in agricultural chemistry from the University of California. Dr. Spencer's present research centres on the metabolism of ethylene and its relationship to biological energy conservation mechanisms and the way they change with development. She is investigating the possibilities of applying this knowledge in the adaptation of plants to short growing periods with a view to increased productivity, broadening of crop choice, and extension of productive areas.

progress designed to educate the public to the growing need for organ donations. Staff members and students are asked to watch for posters containing organ donation cards. The cards can be filled out and carried in wallet or purse. The card is a legal document if signed and witnessed. For further information, telephone Starr Beghin at 432-8822, extension 335.

RESERVE BOOK REQUESTS

Teaching faculty are reminded to submit their Reserve Book Requests for the winter session 1976-77 as soon as possible.

Forms may be obtained by contacting the Cameron Reserve Reading Room, telephone 432-3262.

EVENING PARKING

Effective 1 July 1976 a parking permit will be required to park on campus from 7 a.m. until 10 p.m. daily Monday through Friday, holidays excepted. The rates for Evening Parking Permits are: $20 per year, $3 per month, and $.50 per evening.

This measure is being instituted to comply with the University policy that Parking Services operate on a break-even basis in conjunction with the requirement for additional parking control in the evening. Evening Parking Permits or further information may be obtained at Parking Services, second floor, Art Workshop Number 1, telephone 432-3811 or 432-1236.

KEYPUNCHING

Considerable time can be saved when well-qualified staff keypunch your jobs. Computing Services offers a keypunch service where programs, data, or jobs such as research results are usually completed in one to two days.

Rates are $7.70 per hour; rates for rush jobs are $8.60 per hour. For further information, direct all inquiries to Ella Ritz, 357 General Services Building, telephone 432-5442.
